“ Gail was a beautiful baby with beautiful skin the color which was a mixture from her mother's porcelain color and her father's Native American darker skin. She did everything early like walking at 8 1/2 months and then never stopped moving. She talked early and could read words at age 3 and count to a 100 then at age 4 was reading children's books and never stopped. Even needing glasses early didn't deter her. We called her precious and she was. I wish I had savored every moment of her during the infant to toddler stage all the way up to entering school.

“ Gail, I love you so much. I miss you desperately. You were my precious, beautiful daughter. Not a day goes by that I don't grieve for the loss of you. Some days I just can't even function because it is too much. I love you my sweet baby girl. Mom.
