“ Omar, I still miss you 12 years later. It's insane how much time has passed since I've seen you or heard your laugh. Now you have your mom, Jeremy and Brandon up there with you enjoying all the beautiful things. I'll never stop keeping your guys memory alive. I love you always man

“ I'm sorry it's been 4 years since I've posted. Life has been wild and I'm all grown up now. 6 years ago seems like an eternity. A million and a half things have happened that I wish more than anything you would've been here for but I know you're never far. Lost a lot of friends since you passed so please say hi to our moms and my friends and our sweet, kind, loving friend Jeremy. I have a picture of all of us as kids and its heartbreaking to see that so many are no longer here. I love you more than words can describe. Everytime someone sees my tattoo and asks about it it gives me an opportunity to tell one more person about all the great things that you were. I'll never stop posting on here and I'll never stop keeping your memory alive, you deserve that. Rest In Peace, once a good Omar. Always & forever bro 🕊️💜

“ Here I am again lol wow have things changed since you've been gone! Things have gotten crazy, bad, terrible, scary, depressing, good, wonderful, exciting and amazing. Just a crazy rollercoaster called life, one that I so wish you were apart of! I miss you man but I know you're watching over all of us. Tell both of our moms that I said hello

“ Wow.. It's been 2 whole years and I still can't believe that it even happened.. I miss you so much Omar, you have no idea how much I wish you were still here :( P.s. I will never stop leaving comments on this since you don't have a place to pay respects and even if you did you know I'm all the way in Des Moines, anyways I hope you're still flying high, especially now that you finally got your momma with you.. I love you man! Friends forever
