“ I worked with him at his last place of work, sprouts farmers market on Harvard. I don't feel like everyone he worked with got to really know Paul. We were hired around the same time and slowly yet surely I got him to open up about a love of cars especially American muscle and or the reliability of a good import car. Then onto a love of Mel Brooks, Gene Wilder, national lampoon, and the kings of humor Monty Python. He recommend so many movies and songs to me. I still have a bunch to get through but I'll do it laughing knowing he's probably laughing to.
