“ I worked with Rick for over a decade in security, in all that time from the moment I met him, he would always call me "Dispatch", it never minded it, because to me it was preferred over him getting my name wrong. One while sitting in the dining area, I had just sat down to eat and he called me by my name. Feeling shocked 😞, I turned to look at him and said, "What did you call me?", naturally he got flustered, but he wasn't sure if he had called me by the right name. I laughed, as well as the security officers sitting with him. I didn't even think he knew my name at that point. It was always Dispatch. I still smile when I think about that.
