Jack was always quick to help others any way he could which brought him joy and a smile on his face. His true joy though was his in love for Jesus. If you knew Jack, you had no doubt where he stood in his faith. He loved his family and was very proud of his grandsons. He was their biggest fan and was always available for them if needed. His church and his buddies were also very special to him. Jack will be missed. There is comfort, however, in knowing that he is now well and at home with the Lord.
